PREMIER OF BRITAIN TO ATTEND THE CONFERENCE

Lloyd George Planning Trip To Washington In Autumn

DON'T TOUCH YAP

Hayashi Declares Both Island And Shantung Closed Topics

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 20.—The Daily Mail states that Mr. Lloyd George has decided to go to the United States in the autumn for the Washington conferences.

The Philadelphia Public Ledger gives prominence to a statement from Colonel Edward M. House, who was President Wilson's confidential adviser, and is now in London. Colonel House declares that the British Dominions are now making their influence felt more assertively than ever before, especially as regards foreign affairs.

He says there seems to be some agreement between the Empire Prime Ministers in this respect, and "the time is perhaps not far distant when a Colonial may become Prime Minister of England."

Colonel House urges that the representatives of the Dominions could be utilised in future to cement the Empire and the United States more closely than hitherto, and urges that at the disarmament and Pacific conferences in the autumn there ought to be present the Prime Ministers of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

HAYASHI TALKS

London, July 19.—Interviewed by Reuter's representative, Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Ambassador, emphasised that Japan welcomed President Harding's invitation to a conference but only asked what would be discussed.

He pointed out that if questions such as those of Shantung Yap or New Guinea were raised it might result in a general conference on matters which were already faits accomplis.

He personally believed that a practical solution of all the questions involved was possible without interfering in matters the principle of which had already been decided.

WANTS SENATE IN

New York, July 19.—It is understood that President Harding has decided that the Senate shall be represented on the American delegation to the disarmament conference, owing to the Senate's joint responsibility with the Executive in regard to America's foreign relations.

ITALY'S STAND

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Rome, July 18.—The Premier, Signor Bonomi, outlined the new Government's program in the Senate and Chamber of Deputies today.

As regards foreign policy, the new Cabinet, which the Premier emphasised was a Coalition Cabinet, was absolutely bound by the undertakings of its predecessors—undertakings which Italy was determined loyally to fulfil.

Italy, continued the Premier, "desires to work with her allies in the reconstruction of a better Europe," that is why Italy lost no time in accepting the invitation of the United States to attend a disarmament conference.

KOO TO ATTEND

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, July 18.—It was generally conceded today that Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese Minister to England will be China's representative at the Pacific Conference. Dr. Koo is said to have expressed the wish that Dr. W. W. Yen act as China's representative and attend the conference in person.

This however may be impossible because of the pressing duties in the Foreign Office and it is expected that Dr. Koo, because of his experience in handling China's problems at the Peace Conference, will be the one selected.

Colonel Bogie Slips When Caddies Bag Whale At H'kew

BY JAMES L. BUTTS

The water hazard of Hongkew Park's golf course lost one of its terrors yesterday and the knights of the niblick, nervously debating the selection of driver or mashie on the eighth tee, may henceforth assault the aggravating pellet from that sector with the confidence born of knowledge that there's at least a reasonable chance of recovering the ball.

The miniature lake which breaks the fairway between the seventh and eighth holes at Hongkew, modest and unassuming as it may appear foreshortened beneath the blowing dawn, has long been the favorite nightmare of many a budding golfster and multitudinous have been the balls which, rising bravely from the tee have lunged with a lugubrious kerplunk into the placid waters of that pool—many of them never to reappear.

And thereon hung a mystery, for numbers of the gutta percha missiles which nevermore were seen were subsequently most strenuously attested by their late owners to have been of the "floater" variety, guaranteed to rise buoyantly to the surface of fluids even of such density as are found about Shanghai.

WHY THIS BLUE HAZE

And thus of a morning a thin blue haze crowns the compass of the lake, the same being the refraction and atomisation of language aimed at a patient coolie of deprecating mien who poles a sampan and prods hopefully and unavailingly at the muddy bottom of the pool.

The mystery of why that dash blank golf ball failed to clear the drink will probably never be solved but the problem of its non-reappearance had a dazzling light thrown upon it yesterday when a couple of hysterical caddies raced shrieking to the club house with the announcement that a whale had been captured in the lake.

Incredulous persons wandering cynically to the spot, gasped and admitted error. It was a whale.

The piscatorial monster extracted from this relatively insignificant, if disconcerting, puddle, measured four feet, eight and three-quarters inches from tail to snout and weighed seventy-two pounds, six ounces—authenticated figures.

Six undigested golf balls were found in the brute's gizzard when the autopsy was performed.

Tales regarding the taking of the fish conflict. One narrator has it that the fish misjudged a viciously sliced drive and caught it on the ear.

The version which seems to be best substantiated is that the long-suffering coolie of the sampan, grown weary of the unending criticism of his retrieving ability, sat pondering the matter at daybreak yesterday when the leviathan came to the surface on a scouting expedition and brained it with a boathook.

Whatever the nature of its seizure there is no doubt about its ultimate fate, for within half an hour of the time it was dragged ashore it was sizzling in the skillets of a dozen coolie residences in the neighborhood of the park.

The committee of the J.G.C. is reported to have called a special meeting for the purpose of slashing one stroke off par for the course.

GERMANY IS IREFUL OVER FRENCH NOTE ON SILESIA

Demonstrations Violent Against Troops Of Allies

URGED TO BE FIRM

Genl. Korfanty Sure Of Ultimate Backdown By The Germans

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, July 19.—The German press is angered at the French Note to Germany (cabled by Reuter on the 17th instant) protesting against the threatening attitude of the Germans in Upper Silesia and demanding (1) the disarmament and disbandment of all German volunteer and other corps on the frontier and (2) provision for the rapid transport of French reinforcements about to be sent to Upper Silesia.

The Freiheit "deplores" the fact that the negotiations should have to be carried on "in an atmosphere of political tension."

A number of violent anti-Ally demonstrations, chiefly directed against the French troops, are reported. The German police are stated to have joined sides with the demonstrators. The Inter-Allied Commission has had to despatch reinforcements.

ASK PROTECTION

Paris, July 19.—According to a wireless report published here, the German associations in Upper Silesia have appealed to Mr. Lloyd George to protect the interests of the German population of the territory

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 19.—General Korfanty, the leader of the Polish insurgents, has arrived here. In the course of an interview, he declared that the Germans would offer no resistance if the Allies firmly enforced their decisions.

The proposed meeting of the Supreme Council to settle the question of Upper Silesia, he pointed out, had not yet been fixed.

Berlin, July 19.—The Italian Ambassador has called the attention of the German Government to the concentration of troops on the frontier of Upper Silesia and has requested it to prohibit German forces to enter Silesia.

GOVT. BEATEN BY TWO VOTES BUT GOES CALMLY ON

Opposition Cries Of 'Resign' Fail To Disturb Mr. Chamberlain

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 19.—The Government was defeated in the House of Commons this evening, in the course of a discussion of the Finance Bill. An amendment moved by a Coalition Unionist and supported by Mr. Asquith, exempting co-operative societies from the Corporation Tax was carried against the Government by 137 votes to 135, amidst loud Opposition cheers.

Sir Donald Maclean asked what the Government was going to do. Mr. Austen Chamberlain replied that it intended to proceed with the Bill (Opposition cries of "Resign." Cheers from the Ministerial benches.)

The House then proceeded to consider other amendments and the excitement subsided.

Quezon's Man Also In Toils; Charge Is Appropriating Funds

ATHENS REJOICES OVER CAPTURE OF TOWN OF KUTAHIA

Immense Booty And Horde Of Prisoners Captured: Turks Army Menaced

(Reuter's Service)

Athens, July 18.—The official announcement that the Greeks had captured Kutahia caused scenes of frantic enthusiasm here today.

The streets were beflagged and paraded by crowds who acclaimed the King and the army, and the Te Deum was sung in the Cathedral.

The newspapers declare that several thousand prisoners, and immense booty have been captured, and emphasise the political, and strategical importance of Kutahia, the fall of which is likely to lead to a speedy capture of the main Turkish railway lines.

Kutahia, or Kutaiah as it is often spelled, is the chief town of a sanjak or district in the vilayet (county of Brusa) and commands the great road from Constantinople to Aleppo. It is connected by a branch line with the main line of the Anatolian Railway. It is a busy trade center and has a population of some 22,000.

REPORT ON SIMS SHOWS U.S. NAVY POLICY CONFLICT

Two Volumes Diametrically Opposed As G. O. P. And Democratic Views

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, July 19.—The Senate Naval Committee's report on the controversies in 1920 between Admiral Sims and the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Daniels, shows that very conflicting views prevailed as regards the direction of the American navy early in the war.

The report consists of two volumes, one representing the majority, or Republican members, and the other the minority, or Democrats.

The former severely censures Mr. Josephus Daniels, ex-President Woodrow Wilson, and Admiral Benson for alleged delays, retarding Allied victory, and asserts that the delays were not due to naval unpreparedness but to the self-defensive and non aggressive policy of the Administration.

The minority report declares that the uniform success of American operations amply demonstrates the wisdom of the policies adopted.

New Rheims Library Cornerstone Is Laid By Dr. N. M. Butler

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 19.—Doctor Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the Carnegie Foundation, today laid the first stone of the library at Rheims which is being rebuilt, thanks to the Foundation's donation of $200,000.

There is a general exodus of peasants, as many as two millions being said to have fled from their homes.

The country side is depicted as a wilderness with wells and rivers run dry and trees stripped bare.

The authorities, the reports add, are doing their utmost to calm the population with promises of work in other provinces.

OPPOSE BANQUE ATTEMPTS TO COLLECT MONEY

Business Men Refuse To Honor Demands Of Banque Industrielle

Depositors of the Banque Industrielle de Chine in Shanghai are divided in opinion on the question of the bank's attempts to collect commissions on exchange contracts after the closing of the doors.

Local business men declare the bank broke off relations with the public when it ceased operations, and, therefore, can neither collect commissions, nor overdrafts, until the doors are re-opened, or the institution goes into the hands of liquidators.

Business houses which have attempted to pay overdrafts with Banque Industrielle checks state that the bank refused to honor the documents though retaining funds against them.

Officials of the bank are equally positive in asserting their right to collect money due the institution. They report some commissions paid in. Other depositors are awaiting confirmation of the legality of the proceeding before meeting their obligations to the bank.

Affairs at the home office in the bank in Paris are held in abeyance until the general meeting of the shareholders, July 25. A petition for transactional settlement vitally affecting the future of the Banque Industrielle de Chine, is before the commercial court of Paris, but judgment is deferred until results of the shareholders' meeting are known. Officials of the local branch are optimistic, and say the doors will probably re-open.

Reports of the action taken should reach Shanghai on the morning of July 25.

Dominions Asked Aid In Aerial Plan Of British Empire

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 19.—The Air Ministry announces that the Committee on Imperial Air Communications, which it was resolved to appoint last Friday when a special conference was held at the Colonial Office, will consist of Lord Gorell, the new Under-Secretary to the Air Ministry, Air-Marshal Sir Hugh Trenchard, Major-General Sir F. H. Sykes, representatives of the Treasury and Colonial Office, Sir Ross Smith, Colonel Mentz, and representatives of Canada and India.

The Committee will report to the Imperial Conference before it ends. It is intended then to invite the Dominions to state the conditions on which they will make a contribution and the amount they are prepared to contribute. The British Government will then decide whether to ask Parliament to grant a subscription.

NAVY WORKMEN OUT

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

Washington, July 18.—It is estimated that 5,000 navy yards employes will be rendered idle during the next thirty days, as various navy yards in the United States are making efforts to retrench.

It is officially stated that the proposed disarmament conference is not responsible for this action.

Shans Welcome Strangers To Seat Of Ancient Empire

By Bruce Hopper

BEFORE the Chinese, there were the Shans.

An astonishing moment for the casual student travelling in Yunnan is when he learns that the women with high blue hats, and the men with huge turbans of the same color, are Shans, the real sons of the soil in China.

The Chinese, he discovers, were originally immigrants from the Caspian sea, who found here the Shan empire well advanced in culture and arts.

One has to work out his historical ideas from the beginning. The Chinese are not the real ancients of the earth after all. The feeling is not unlike the chagrin of the boy lover of the Deerslayer stories when he is told that copper-hued mound builders, an extinct race of other days, roamed the Mississippi valley long before the American Indian invaded the region from the northwest.

Indistinct faces, and obscure names in history's morning mist are suddenly and vividly introduced to the world by the scholar, and one has to learn the stirring events of another forgotten cycle of time. What seems old today takes a place comparatively late in history upon the next turn of the excavator's pick.

SHANS REAL ANCIENTS

So it is with the Chinese, who have lived many cycles in Cathay. When they came they found the people of Tai, called Shans by the Burmans, holding sway throughout the land south of the Yangtsze, and to the north in Szechuen and parts of Thibet.

It is known that the Chinese sent ambassadors to the court of the Shans 4,000 years ago, about the time Hammurabi was codifying the laws of Babylon.

For 2,500 years the Shans held political sovereignty in western and southern China, a longer national existence than that of Greece or Rome. The Chinese were the conquering race, and drove the Shans southward, until today the descendants of the Tai empire are mostly in Siam, Upper Burma, and the belt from Assam in India to Canton.

The dispersion of this race was marked by even greater migrations toward the South, beginning in the sixth century B.C. One of the most significant of the migrations was in 78 A.D. following a rebellion against the Chinese.

THE SHAN EMPIRE

In 629 A.D. was developed the great kingdom Ai-Lao, called Nan-Chao by the Chinese, with its capital at Talifu. Remnants of that mighty, almost forgotten, empire are to be seen in the stately pagodas around the lake at Talifu.

Much is to be revealed by the earnest sinologues who are attempting to unravel this curious skein of historical threads. Decay's effacing fingers have been constantly at work, and the Shans are a people whose annals were brief.

Kublai Khan's memorable siege and capture of Talifu, 1234, ended the Shan sovereignty in western China, although the territory was not incorporated into the Chinese empire until the 17th century. But the Shans continue to hold political power in Siam, where the present dynasty has reigned

Police On Trail Of Stray Dogs In Frenchtown

A dog pogrom is about to be initiated in the French concession, according to the orders given the police yesterday.

All masterless strays are to be rounded up, and taken to the pound if possible. The ownerless dog which eludes the noose, or proves dangerous to the dog catchers, will be killed on the spot.

The severity of the measure is due to the existence of several cases of rabies in the French Concession. The Consulate General, in notifying the public of the campaign, points out the particular danger of a great number of stray dogs in the hot season.

Owners are requested to keep their dogs muzzled while on the streets, and to co-operate with the police by reporting the deaths of dogs in their neighborhood.

PROTEST JAPANESE

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 20.—The Shantung Provincial Assembly has telegraphed to the Government, protesting against the employment of Japanese instructors in the Railway Police Academy, on the ground that the Japanese are not entitled to more than the Germans, who have not been so employed.

No Reading Done In Shanghai? Huh! Hearken To This

Who says that Shanghai is non-literary, if not actually antagonistic to books?

By means of a large advertisement in the Hsin Shun Pao, the Koh Chia Doo Sz Kwan—which is a book store located in Zang Sen Lee, off Foochow Road—announces to the world that its profits since the first year of the Republic have reached the total of $1,000,000. In celebration whereof the establishment proffers the following inducements to further interest in the printed page:

A discount of 90 percent on all books bought will be allowed.

Any purchaser who invests as much as $1 in literature will receive a prize, the assessed value of which will amount to 50 cents.

Makers of $1 purchases will receive for each dollar a ticket for a prize drawing, the rewards in which are to range from 10-cent credit coupons to a pair of diamond rings worth $5,000.

An inducement not stressed in the advertisement, but which should nonetheless have a strong appeal is the announcement that for ten cents may be purchased a volume entitled "How to Become Wealthy."

OUTLOOK ON SETTLEMENT IN IRELAND NOW DARKER

Gloom Follows Optimism Despite No Change In Situation

CRAIG GOES HOME

Fitzgerald Calls Ulster Misled By England, "Foreign Power"

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 19.—Contrasting with their early optimism, the papers today are somewhat gloomy regarding the prospects of an Irish settlement, but the fact is that the situation is quite unchanged.

The most remarkable feature of it is the extraordinary reserve maintained both by the Sinn Feiners and the Government in disclosing nothing regarding the course of the negotiations.

The reason the conversations between Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. de Valera were adjourned until July 21 is simply due to the fact that the Prime Minister is fully engaged today and tomorrow with the Dominions' Prime Ministers. Mr. Meighen leaves for Canada on July 21, and it is imperative that certain matters of the Conference should be finally settled before his departure.

Sir James Craig and his Ulster colleagues have returned to Belfast and it is not expected that the Ulster Premier will return to London till the preliminaries have been settled and the scheme for a conference formulated. This is regarded as indicating that there will be no further indirect negotiations between Mr. de Valera and Sir James Craig.

Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald, chief of Sinn Fein Propaganda Bureau, who was recently released from internment, interviewed in London, said there had not been a conference yet: the conversations at No. 10 Downing Street had been directed towards discovering a basis for a conference which, in the Sinn Fein view, must be that Ireland, as an independent nation, must have an agreement with the British Government.

The only comment he had to make on Sir James Craig's statement was that the Ulster Premier was in the same position as the Southern Americans in 1861.

London, July 20.—Mr. de Valera has issued a statement to the effect that Ireland demands the right to choose freely how she should be governed, namely, independence. She only requests freedom from British aggression and interference.

Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald's official statement amplifies this as meaning that the claim of the Irish nation is for President Wilson's fourteen points, with the right of small nations to self-determination.

Mr. Fitzgerald adds: "The Ulster Cabinet represents only a very small minority of the Irish people, who, we claim, have been systematically, wilfully and fundamentally misled by the foreign power, England."

The Morning Post points out that the people of Southern Ireland are refusing Ulster the right the former are claiming from England, namely, self-determination.

TROTSKY DENIES RUSSIA IS 'HUGE RUIN' OF HUGHES

Head Of Soviets Declares U.S. Secretary Ignores Interlocked Industry

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow (via Manchuli), July 13.—In his report on the economic situation of the world delivered at the Third International, Mr. Trotsky referred to the statements of Mr. Hughes, Secretary of State of the United States of America, and Mr. Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor.

The statements are to the effect that Russia economically represents a huge ruin, which in no way can be attributed to the Allied blockade as the disorganised industries were independent of foreign countries previous to the war. The ruin, according to Mr. Hughes, is due to the enormous mobilisations by the Soviet Government.

"All this is childish talk," said Mr. Trotsky. "In the first place the decline in Russia's industries was due not only to the mobilisation for the civil war but mainly due to the mobilisation for the world's imperialistic war. The Tsar left the skilled workers at the factories and mills because the command of the Russian army then was organised by the bourgeoisie nobility from the professional officers and student volunteers.

"The command of the Soviet army, on the contrary, consists of skilled workers. Therefore the mobilisations forced upon us by the Allies have caused our industries greater harm than the imperialistic war.

"The assertion that the industries which before the war were not dependent on foreign countries and have also been disorganised, is a monstrous neglect of the rudiments of political economy, namely, that all branches of industry are interdependent. Until the war Russia was a member of the world's industrial organisation; during the war she became still more dependent upon the capitalistic countries of the Allies.

"The blockade with one stroke severed all vital connections with the industrial world, the result being that all the main branches of industry have been crippled or paralysed for the lack of sometimes very insignificant accessories which have to be imported from abroad. We are short of surveying instruments, special drills for the coal-mines and steel cables which we used to import from England or Germany.

"To build up a new industry for manufacturing these articles is of course very difficult for a country whose economic life has been shattered and cut off from the rest of the world. For the lack of wire screens, formerly imported from foreign countries, the paper industry has suffered severely. There are numerous other articles which are insignificant in themselves but nevertheless essential to industries, that we have never manufactured ourselves.

ALL INTERDEPENDENT

"There is no branch of any industry which does not directly or indirectly depend upon some other branch from which we have been cut off by the blockade.

"If Mr. Hughes had grasped the phenomena of the internal relations of different industries and their universal interdependence, he would have said: 'The fact that Soviet Russia—which has been forcibly torn off from the economic life, shattered and exhausted by the imperialistic and civil wars—could endure for three years foreign intervention and more wars, and clothed, fed and armed any army at times exceeding five million men is nothing more nor less than a miracle.'"

Receipts Fall But Expenses Increase Exchequer Reports

London, July 19.—The exchequer returns for the period extending from April 1 to July 16 show that receipts totalled £253,500,000 and expenditure £305,500,000 as compared with £374,000,000 and £321,000,000 respectively for the corresponding period of last year.

Mixed Court Jottings

A rider censoring local garages was appended to the verdict returned by Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Yui yesterday following the inquest held in connection with the death of the chauffeur who was burned at the Central Garage, Hongkong Road, last Saturday night. In delivering the verdict the Assessor remarked that garages should exercise greater care in supervising the filling of petrol tanks to prevent the overflowing or spilling of the fuel. The court asked that the point be brought to the attention of the proper authorities. Evidence at the inquest tended to show that the blaze must have been started by the throwing of a cigarette end or match into gasoline which had overflowed from a tank which was being filled.

The eight men charged with rioting at the New World on the night of June 17, when a Sikh policeman was shot to death and a Chinese constable was wounded, were discharged by Assessor Ferrajolo and Magistrate Loh yesterday, the court holding that the evidence was insufficient to convict. The man charged with the murder of the Sikh and the attempted murder of the Chinese policeman will come up for trial today. Attorneys representing the defendants in the riot charge included Messrs. Krisel, Ting, Rodger, Ponson Chu, Kentwell, Newman and Brown. Mr. R. C. Faithful prosecuted.

The case in which a Russian named Pavil Kravchenko and a Lithuanian named Vladislaw Ruslicka are charged with putting a counterfeit $50 American banknote into circulation was called for hearing yesterday, but Kravchenko, who was released on $100 bail a week ago, did not appear and the hearing was adjourned one week, the other defendant to remain in custody.

A cook caught attempting to burgle premises at 279 Fokien Road was sentenced to two years' imprisonment yesterday. After his arrest he admitted four successful burglaries and larcenies, in one of which he stole a box containing 12,000 copper cents.

The keeper of an opium den, at 437 Markham Road, forfeited $50 bail money by non-appearance in court yesterday and four of the five smokers arrested in the raid sacrificed $5 each by the same process. The lone patron who answered when the case was called was fined $2.

An inquest was begun yesterday over the body of a 15-year-old foundry apprentice who is alleged to have died as a result of an assault made upon him by the foreman of the establishment. The police asked an adjournment to permit a post mortem examination. The Chinese accused of the assault is being detained.

Russian Opera Co. In 'La Boheme' Tonight

Mashir, Danilov, Karlash and Valentinova, the big four of the Russian Opera Company now playing at the Lyceum, will all be heard tonight in Puccini's wonderful "La Boheme," which was sung by the talented company a week ago before a large and enthusiastic audience. "La Boheme" is one of the best productions of the company and Miss Mashir as Mimi and Mr. Danilov as Rudolph have plenty of opportunities. Valentinova will sing the Musetta with Karlash as Colline the philosopher, one of the four friends who occupy an attic in the Latin Quarter.

Miss Mashir has several big numbers tonight. She sings the Mi chiamano Mimi (My Name is Mimi) in the first act, the Musetta Waltz in Act II and the Farewell Song in the third act in addition to her many numbers with Danilov and as one of the quartet. Mimi is of course the central figure in the stirring death scene as the curtain falls.

The story of "La Boheme" is well known. It was first produced as an opera at Turin in 1896, with Toscanini conducting. The opera is an adaptation of Murger's La Vie Boheme.

Strangers Welcomed By Shans To Seat Of Ancient Empire

for nearly 600 years. The Shan states of Burma are semi-independent under British rule.

The five million Shans in China are governed by their hereditary chiefs, who pay annual tribute to the Chinese government. The migrations of the race have ceased, as have the feuds with the Chinese.

But the Shans are more indolent, and can not stand economic competition with the Chinese. The result is they live in the hot valleys, such as the malarial Salween, and the Mekong, while the Chinese occupy the mountains above 4,000 feet.

The old order changeth, but the Shans are much as they were two milleniums ago. The traveller feels a certain sense of awe in accepting their hospitality; they are direct descendants of people who were contemporary with Cheops, who were already civilised when the forefathers of the ancient Greeks were living in the Danube caves.

WORSHIP WATER GOD

Their religion is Buddhism, over a layer of animism. Isolated groups of Shans in San Tui Tzu, Macheng, Lung Kai, and other villages on the southern loop of the Yangtsze tell the traveller they don't know where their ancestors came from. They evidently migrated from the old empire without any priests, for they have neither the religious writing of the Southern Shans, nor the Buddhist doctrines.

As they live on the river one of their chief forms of worship is the ceremony of propitiating the water god, Shen Shui.

Before attempting a particularly dangerous rapid the boatmen kill a rooster, sprinkle blood on the gunwales and oars, and stick feathers, and incense sticks on the bow and stern. The cock is then plucked, and placed facing the river.

Rice and fat are put on either side before an altar of seven incense sticks, and each boatman in turn kneels, and murmurs prayers for a safe passage through the rapid.

Most Shan women in Yunnan still wear skirts, and high blue hats, although the process of assimilation with the Chinese has led to the adoption by some of the trousers. They never bind the feet. Many Shan women are pretty with rosy cheeks. They wear silver ear rings and are fond of bright ornaments. The men wear huge blue turbans, and many of them have queues.

PRINCES OF HOSPITALITY

Among other aboriginal tribes of China the Shans stand as princes of hospitality. They are almost universally kind to the traveller, and often provide him with chicken and vegetables free of charge.

Although the estimation of distance is an unknown art in the Upper Yangtsze region the Shan chiefs call in their lieutenants to confer with the traveller, and send him on his way with all the information available. This service is of great value in the unmapped country.

A unique tradition among the river dwellers causes them to assist strangers who are either lost, or unable to make their way to more civilised sections alone.

The village headman calls in the goatherds from the cliffs, and bids them carry the foreigner's packs and stores to the next village, where the local headman assumes responsibility until the stranger passes out of his territory. No pay is expected, but small presents are gratefully acknowledged.

By such stages the traveller eventually reaches a large mart where he can hire mules, or professional coolies.

The position of the Shans in that great universal history, yet to be written, will be an important one. Sinologues promise us interesting details upon their possible relationship in remote times with the invading Chinese. It may even be possible to discover the place of the Shan in the ethnic tangle of western China which is still a puzzle to scholars.

Wang Trying To Unify Provinces For Peking Govt.

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, July 15.—Informal negotiations are being opened by General Wang Chan-yuan with special representatives from Kwangsi, Szechuen, Kweichow and Yunnan with a view to reuniting these hitherto autonomous provinces with the Peking government. The representatives, duly authorised by their respective provinces, arrived in Hankow this week, and they were given private interviews by General Wang at his yamen in Wuchang. After these preliminary discourses, conferences will be arranged in Wuchang to take up the matter of unification.

Authorities of Hunan province, too, have repeatedly assured General Wang of their continued friendship, besides denying the news of Hunan's attack on Hupeh. Szechuen likewise has previously sent a representative to Wuchang requesting that all former joint defence measures of Szechuen and Hupeh be continued though the former administration in Szechuen has been changed. On the resumption of hostilities between Kwangtung and Kwangsi, the position of Kiangsi province was endangered. Thereupon, the Kiangsi Tuchun, General Chen Kwang-yuan sent officials here to arrange measures of protection with Tuchun Wang.

A rumor is again current that a league of several central provinces will possibly be formed with Super-Tuchun Wang Chan-yuan as leader of the ring of lesser Tuchuns. Apparently Super-Tuchun Wang is the man that is marked to loom high in politics in Central China. Opposition against his retention of office in Hupeh is not subsiding, it is true. But at any event the much condemned Super Tuchun is well equipped to cope with it.

The likelihood is that warlord Wang may someday emerge from the opposition and be a political factor of importance. The speculation that he may be compelled to quit his yamen at Wuchang a discredited man can no longer be true. This is because of the growing intimacy of Wang with General Chang Tso-lin of Mukden.

Shanghai May Be Sweltering But Its People Are Healthy Is Health Report Finding

No Basis Found Here For Japanese Declaration That Port Is Infected—Newcomers Are Told How To Keep Well

Though the Japanese authorities of Dairen lately have seen fit to declare Shanghai to be an infected port, the current report of the Municipal Health Department is reassuring, for it is pointed out in this report that the death rate in the International Settlement and the incidence of infectious diseases, both among foreigners and Chinese continue to be remarkably low.

A large portion of the report is of particular value to newcomers as it contains advice and suggestions pointing out the best methods of preserving health through the heated term.

THE REPORT

The following is the report:

"The death rate and the incidence of infectious disease, both among foreigners and Chinese still remain remarkably low.

"Now is the time of greatest danger from intestinal infections: freedom from these is a good indication of the sanitary intelligence of a community. Shanghai at present shows a high standard and there is no reason why it should not be maintained. A little thought and a little trouble are necessary; and the careful following out of the instructions of the public health notice obtainable from the Health Office or any of the district health offices, is urgently recommended.

"It is no easy matter to keep up a high resistance against disease through the great heat and humidity of the summer months.

"The various systems of the body—the digestive, the circulatory, the respiratory, the excretory and the nervous—are working under unusual stress, and if this is too great any of them may easily break down.

"A few remarks on personal hygiene, though rather of the nature of platitudes, may not be out of place.

"Food and drink.—Light, easily digested meals should be taken, with meat, for most people, only once a day, so that the system is not laden with waste products which cause depression or irritability, and often a tendency to boils, and disorders of the intestinal tract.

TEMPERANCE ADVISED

"Alcohol—that pleasant but pernicious poison—if taken at all—only in the strictest moderation, and not till after sundown. It is really difficult, honestly, to say a good word for alcohol.

"In one of his essays, Arnold Bennett, during the course of the discussion says 'In the meantime alcohol produces a delightful social atmosphere that nothing else can produce. Only its next mornings are not triumphant.' That is the best that can be said for it. No factor is more potent in breaking down resistance against disease. Every surgeon considers alcohol his greatest enemy.

"The smallest quantity taken regularly, day after day, clogs the human organism, and takes the edge off efficiency: large quantities taken similarly, ruin and destroy it more terribly than almost any other known poison.

"Throughout history mankind has shown a craving for stimulants and narcotics. Let them be the least harmful, and used in the strictest moderation.

REGULAR EXERCISE

"Clothing.—Loosely woven cotton or linen underclothing is the best. The fibres are smooth and unirritating: they absorb moisture quickly and part with it quickly, thus allowing efficient and constant action of the skin. Silk is less absorbent, and wool still less so. The inbricated fibres of wool irritate the skin, and increase the tendency to prickly heat. The outer garments prevent chill, which would be caused by too rapid evaporation.

"Under garments should be changed once or twice daily, and a warm bath may be taken with advantage, followed by a rubdown with a cold sponge, or for the robust, by a quick, cold shower-bath.

"Exercise should be regular, pleasurable and stimulating—not fatiguing.

"Sleep is most essential for recuperating nervous energy, and late hours should be reduced to a minimum.

"The observance of a few simple measures such as these will carry most people safely through the difficult summer months."

Wu Pei-fu Rejects Hupeh Tuchunship

Rather Be Called "Bad Egg" Than To Be Addressed Military Governor

"Call me a bad egg or anything, but don't confer the title of Tuchun on me," said Wu Pei-fu when he was recently offered the tuchunship of Hupeh by a number of delegates from Wuchang. Following the mutiny of Tuchun Wang Chuan-yuan's troops in both Ichang and Wuchang, Hupeh residents started a movement to oust Wang and a deputation was sent to Loyang, Honan, to request Wu to go down to the Hupeh capital and replace Wang.

When told that he was being wanted to be the Tuchun of Hupeh, General Wu said, "There is nothing in the world which I hate more than the tuchunate in China. If you wish to confer the title of tuchun on me, you are not honoring me; you are insulting me. It is like calling me a rotten egg."

The delegation was obliged to return to Wuchang without making any further progress in their mission.

In an address to his troops recently, General Wu announced that he would never make use of his forces to acquire any tuchunship or enlarge his sphere of influence as other militarists do, but will call on them for help when the nation requires them for the maintenance of right and justice.

LU FLEES IS RUMOR

Lu Yung-ting, war lord of Kwangsi, has fled to Annam with his family, according to the Chinese press. The Kwangtung forces are now pressing upon Nanning, his former headquarters.

BRITISH PROTEST MILITARY USE OF CHINA'S PLANES

British control over the Chinese Aeronautical Department is intimated as a result of the declaration made by Pan Chu-yin, the new chief, to convert the airplanes to military use, which is taken by the British Legation as a direct violation of the terms of the airplane agreement entered into between Peking and Messrs. Vickers, Ltd., according to advices from Peking.

The legation has lodged a protest with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs against the action of Chang Tso-lin, the Mukden war lord, who had seized a number of the planes secured from Great Britain under the pretext that they are to be used for the Mongolian Expedition. The machines are now quartered at the Mukden railway station.

Messrs. Vickers (China), Ltd., have refused to advance any further installments on the loan, because of the violation of the terms. They have written to Premier Chin, holding him responsible for the interest on the advances already made and demanding that a portion of the monthly surplus salt revenue be set aside for the payment of the interest due, according to the Chinese press.

A large number of the members of the staff of the department has tendered their resignation owing to the failure of the department to pay their salaries.

A thorough reorganisation of the department with British supervision will be made before any further installments are to be made on the loan, it is understood.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.
Save the Babies.
INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!
We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons, in any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.
The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria
Physicians Recommend Castoria.
"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."
J. E. SIMPSON, M. D., Chicago, Ill.
"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result."
F. GERALD BLASTNER, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.
"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserving the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."
J. B. ALEXANDER, M. D., Omaha, Neb.
"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Mothers like it, for children will take it without any trouble."
C. A. WILSON, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.
"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and efficient laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood."
CHAS. EDWARD GARDINER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.
"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."

DIAMONDS AND 9TH CAVALRY TO PLAY IN SHANGHAI IF LOCALS CAN PULL SERIES

Negotiations Opened With Baseball Teams Now Playing Series At Tientsin; Shanghai Fans Would Support Games Here Financially

THE Ninth Cavalry baseball nine and the Osaka Diamond team, both of which are now competing in a six-team baseball tournament in Tientsin, will be seen in a three-cornered series in Shanghai early in August, if negotiations now under way are successful. The tourney at Tientsin runs until August 2. It is possible that both aggregations will journey to Shanghai immediately after that date, for another tourney of baseball here.

The Shanghai Baseball club already has entered into negotiations with both teams. Manager J. H. Ross has communicatec with Col. Benjamin Pope of the 15th Infantry at Tientsin asking that the Cavalry team be procured. A telegram has been sent to Tientsin last night asking under what terms the Japanese team would consider the Shanghai series.

It is almost certain that both these high class nines will sign up for play in Shanghai. The Cavalry team when it left Manila, had in mind, after meeting the 15th Infantry and the Legation Marine Guard up north, a trip to Shanghai, for games with the local club. The Diamond team is touring North China on a vacation trip. They need only a guarantee of expenses to play a series here.

CLUB IS FOR IT

The management and the committee of the Shanghai Baseball Club believes Shanghai can offer any reasonable guarantee for the appearance of either or both of the teams mentioned. The entertainment that these players could furnish Shanghai fans would be worth so much in addition to the program of the regular baseball season, that a special subscription to defray the expense would be eagerly subscribed to by local lovers of the national game.

Insofar as concerns the Diamond team and the expense of bringing it here, it is believed that the Japanese community of Shanghai will go as high as $4,000 toward footing the bill. And the Baseball Club and other foreign baseball fans can go another four thousand if needed. The Baseball Club now has over $2,500 in the treasury.

These figures, of course are put far above the actual requirements, yet they indicate the amount of interest here in the prospect of the promised games. Numerous fans have said that they would gladly duplicate their baseball subscriptions to assure a series; some have mentioned a century-spot as their share and it is believed that even that might not be the limit.

MARINES UNDER, 4-5

In the first game of the Tientsin tourney, the Infantry defeated the Marines by a score of 5-4. Hutchinson, the Army pitcher who worked here against Shanghai allowed but one hit. Both teams lined up practically as they did here early last month. The second game of the schedule had the Marines opposing the Tientsin All Stars.

Shanghai Saturday will play its Red Sox-Blue Sox teams with about the same lineup as worked last Sunday. Dennison and Roeser will form the battery for the Reds, while Terry and Hoag will work for the Blues.

JAPANESE TO PLAY

Sunday will see Shanghai opposing a specially selected team from the best of the Japanese players who have been working all spring at Hongkew park.

Both of these dates should furnish excellent baseball. The Reds-Blues game on Saturday gives an even division of strength so that the game is bound to be well contested.

The Sunday date will see the best Japanese players in the city striving for a win over the first team of the Shanghai Baseball club. Saturday's game commences at 3:30 p.m., and Sunday's at 3:45.

CHAMPION FLEES FROM QUARTERS

Follows Punch And Judy Show Out Of Town—Big Fight Is Off

BY "BUGS" BAER

Nobody:

When you say that Gink Fowler is tough you are using your hat for a megaphone. Roughtown was only the seaport for the town I lived in. We got 'em young and trained 'em. Slapper Burns slapped Gink so loosely that Gink folded up like a patent tobacco pouch. The referee counted ten. The audience added fifty more and bought the flowers. Slapper used to slap with his open hand. If he had ever closed his fist he would have granulated his opponents. He battled with the outstretched slap because he liked his opponents pulverised.

Yours untruly,

ANIMAL CRACKERS,

Bridgeport.

This bird is like an accordeon. You make more noise trying to shut it up than you would if you left it open.

But we have too much time to argue with this cuckoo. Gink has been kidnapped. He disappeared from Haverstraw about the same time that the siren on Sing Sing jailhouse started to toot the "Escaping Song" from The Prisoner of Zenda.

We looked under Gink's pillow. There was nothing there. He has gone like the jack we loaned to Russia. If the mystery were a little thicker we could stick a spoon in it and call it hash. Gink seemed happy around the old training camp. A smile was on his face the last time we saw him being counted out.

The Glutt is suspected of dealing 'em off the cuff. At dawn last night a city slicker crawled under the swinging doors on the old village steeple and handed Gink a stick of red and white peppermint candy. We think Gink has fallen for the movies and will bob up as a waitress in a Los Angeles restaurant.

Why do champions leave home? Is there too much fighting on the old canvas doormat? Gink always got along well with his opponents in the ring. He was a bright, vivacious boy and abhorred the minute rest between rounds. He hated to sit out a dance.

The champ's out leaves the village barkeep without a sparring partner. When last seen Gink was dressed inconspicuously in a golden straw hat with an aurora borealis band, wore pinch-back pajamas, red-heeled shoes, carried a bouquet of pinochle cards and was riding an elephant. This is but a meagre description. He had two Queensbury beauty marks where his eyes should have been and his ears were flapping in the breeze like angel wings.

We offer a reward of one skillion for the return of Gink, unsafe and unsound. Unless we can get him to meet Carpentier it looks as if the championship is doomed to remain in America.

Sports Correspondence

Sporting Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir.—With reference to the article published in your valuable paper this morning, regarding organisation of a club for the former students of The Shanghai College, we beg to state that you have been misinformed to some extent and we request you to insert this letter for correction.

The proposed club is not to be organised by the Alumni of the Shanghai College, which is itself an organisation for graduates of the college only, unlike other colleges whose alumni associations allow any one to be a member, provided he has studied for any length of time in the colleges.

The students of Shanghai College who have either had no chance to complete the regular college course or do not, through some reason or other, desire to finish, have not this privilege. The club or fraternity is to be formed by the non-graduates for the non-graduates. The new organisation has no connection with the Alumni of the Shanghai College.

Thanking you for your valuable space,

We remain,
Yours truly,

Hongkong Bank Pair To Meet Mitsui Bussan Kaisha At S.C.C. Courts

The final in the hong doubles is scheduled to be played off next Tuseday, at the Shanghai Cricket Club, when Mitsui Bussan Kaisha meets the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation in the deciding net battle for the 1921 championship.

In the semi-finals Mitsui Bussan Kaisha (Tanaka and Okada) beat Anderson Meyer and Co. (Dawson and Wythe), 6-4, 6-4.

Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation (Canavarro and Collaco) won from White Cooper, Master and Harris (Master and Brown), 6-1, 6-4.

HOW OLD DO YOU LOOK?

Old age is altogether a matter of years. People of seventy or eighty often look twenty years younger. On the other hand it is not unusual to see a man or woman of thirty who has the appearance of a person of fifty.

If you would retain your vigor, strength and ambition keep your blood and nerves in good condition. Anemia or thin blood lowers the vitality, starves the nerves and causes a general run-down condition. When the blood is thin the skin loses its color, the shoulders droop, weight is lost and lines crease the face. These are the outward changes wrought by the disease. The victim of anemia loses appetite, suffers from indigestion, headaches, sleeplessness, nervousness and exhaustion after slight effort.

Do not delay. If you have any or all of these symptoms begin treatment now with Dr. Williams' pink pills, the world-famous blood and nerve tonic. You will be surprised to note the improvement in your condition after a few weeks. Almost the first effect of the treatment will be an improved appetite. As the blood becomes enriched the color returns to the cheeks and elasticity to the step. Headaches, nervousness, sleeplessness and weakness soon disappear.

Get a bottle of Dr. Williams' pink pills at your druggist's today, or write to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai enclosing $1.50, and a bottle will be sent you, post paid. A little book, "Building Up the Blood," which explains the treatment, will be sent free on request.

JAPAN LOOMS AS CHALLENGER IN DAVIS CUP COMPETITION; SHIMIDZU PLAYING WELL

Nipponese Favored As Winner In Play Off Of Tie With Belgium; Then Meets India Which Took Rubber From France; Japanese Form Is Improved

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 19.—India has won the rubber in the Davis Cup eliminating matches against France, Sleem defeating Samazeuilh, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

Commenting on India's unanticipated victory which has placed her in the semi-final round, experts praise the genius of Jacob's captaincy which, they say, is largely responsible for it.

The team have now to go to America to meet the winner of the Japan-Belgium tie which will probably be Japan. Japan is relying upon Kumagne and Shimidzu both in the singles and doubles.

Shimidzu's recent play in England demonstrated that he has advanced his form at last half fifteen since he played at Wimbledon in 1920.

His service is unaltered but few players can score off it, and he is hitting harder off the ground. He frequently makes brilliant winners with forehand and backhand drives, while his volleying has become first-rate, especially overhead, where he kills tosses with deadly precision.

Japan should reach the final round and today she is favored as the challenger.

"Began to think she would never get well."

Our Portrait is of Miss FLORRIE ORGAN, of 100, Clark Street, Ladywood, Birmingham, England, whose father writes:

"My daughter Florrie was suffering with a very bad head covered with Sores and Eruptions, and in fact her mother was afraid to comb her hair. She had been under several doctors, but all to no purpose, so I began to think she would never get well again and lose all her hair. As your 'Clarke's Blood Mixture' cured me of Glandular Swellings in the Neck some years ago, and so averted my having to undergo an operation, I decided to give 'Clarke's Blood Mixture' a fair trial in the case of my daughter, and I am pleased to say it effected a wonderful cure in just over a fortnight."

SUFFERERS from Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Glandular Swellings, Piles, Eczema, Boils, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Eruptions, Rheumatism, Gout, should realise that lotions and ointments can but give temporary relief; to be sure of complete and lasting benefit the blood must be thoroughly cleansed of the impure waste matter the root cause of such troubles. Clarke's Blood Mixture quickly attacks, overcomes and expels the impurities; that is why so many remarkable recoveries stand to its credit. Pleasant to take, and free from injurious ingredients.

Fell in Love with Her Picture 2500 Miles Away

The Joan of Arc Photograph That Took by Storm the Heart of Fashionable Mrs. Norman de Ruyter Whitehouse's Montana Brother and How He Won at Last the New York Girl Who Had Posed for It

"Again and again young Mr. Boarman gazed hungrily at that photograph.

"'She's the one girl in the world for me,' he cried. 'But she's 2,500 miles away and how am I going to meet her?'"

The Lovely Mrs. Boarman (Formerly Miss Madigan).

Mrs. Norman de Ruyter Whitehouse and Her Little Daughter.

Mr. Marcus Daly Boarman, Who Fell in Love with a Picture and Married Its Original.

"BY jingo—that's the girl!"

Out in the little town of Round Up, Montana, a tall, good-looking young man with tanned cheeks jumped from his chair and took a few agitated steps around a somewhat bare room. He held in his hand a page of a New York newspaper on which appeared a number of photographs. Every now and then he would halt, look at the page and mutter: "Yes, that's the girl!"

Outside the quiet main street of Round Up retained all its quiet. The peaks of the lofty Rockies guarding the valley in which the town lay were just as peaceful as always. The usual number of Round-Uplans or Round Up-ers walked unheeding by the door of the office of the excited young man on which was a sign reading: "Marcus Daly Boarman, Attorney-at-Law."

The young gentleman whom the paper with its pictures had so mysteriously disturbed was Mr. Boarman himself. A scant hour ago he had ridden down to the post office and had received a bunch of magazines and newspapers which his sister, that valiant and victorious suffragist, devoted war worker and society ornament of New York and Newport, Mrs. Norman de Ruyter Whitehouse, had sent him. He had opened them in his office, glancing over them casually until he had struck this especial page.

It was then that he had exclaimed, "By jingo—that's the girl!"

But what girl? Some lost heiress that young Mr. Boarman, in his capacity of attorney, was seeking? Someone in whom his godfather, the immensely rich Marcus Daly, Midas of the Montana mines, was interested in finding? Someone his distinguished sister, Mrs. Whitehouse, was seeking?

Not at all. Until the moment he had seen her picture Mr. Boarman had not known she had existed!

He stopped his pacing and spread the page out upon his table. He gazed upon it with a singular intensity. Anyone looking over his shoulder would have noted that his eyes were fixed upon the photograph of an exceedingly lovely girl in the armor of Joan of Arc. She knelt with her sword extended, her big eyes filled with the Maid's holy ardor. Under the photograph was a line: "Miss Virginia Madigan, who played the chief role in the Joan of Arc Pageant at Fordham University."

And what had come about was just such a situation which when handled by the motion picture scenario writer, or novelist, makes people say: "Oh, pshaw! It couldn't happen in real life!"

It had happened in real life. Young Mr. Boarman, in his quiet Round Up law office, had fallen, conquered by a photograph! Cupid had shot not one arrow into his heart but a whole quiverful! Mrs. Whitehouse's brother and Marcus Daly's godson had tumbled all at once head over heels in love with a girl he had never seen.

"By jingo," murmured young Mr. Boarman again. "That's the one girl in the world for me! But how the dickens am I going to meet her?"

It was quite apparent that here was no romantic girl to be won by an amorous letter; no vain butterfly to be caught in a net of compliments. Clearly she was of highest position in Catholic circles of New York, or else the honor of portraying the martyred and saluted Maid of Orleans would never have been given her.

How on earth could he meet Miss Virginia Madigan, of New York City? And after that how could he convince her that it would be for her weal and happiness to become Mrs. Marcus Daly Boarman, of Round Up, Montana? Some problem!

He could think of only one possible point of approach. He knew a man on the newspaper that had printed the picture. He promptly wrote an honest letter, asking if he could be given Miss Madigan's address. The newspaperman, it chanced, knew Miss Madigan, and sent her the letter.

Miss Virginia opened her blue eyes wide when she opened the envelope.

"What ought I do about this, mamma?" she asked.

"Just whatever you wish, dear," answered Mrs. Madigan. "He seems like a young man who won't misunderstand a courtesy."

And that was why, most unexpectedly, when Mr. Boarman opened a letter in unfamiliar handwriting and read it, all the sunshine in the world seemed suddenly to have been concentrated in his office.

Yet all the note said was:

"Dear Mr. Boarman: I am glad you liked my picture of Joan of Arc. I appreciated the honor of being chosen to represent her in the pageant. VIRGINIA MADIGAN."

Did Mr. Boarman answer? Did he! And received an answer? Oh, yes. And wrote again? Yes, yes, indeed! And sent her a volumn of poems, too.

Haunted by visions of myriads of other young men clustering about Miss Virginia and offering her their hearts and fortunes, Mr. Boarman packed up his grips one day and started East, filled with as much grim determination as ever impelled young Lochinvar on his similar errand.

Going down to his place of business on West Forty-seventh street, New York, Papa Madigan was surprised to be greeted by a tall, bronzed young giant, who shifted his travelling bag and held out a hand.

"Ma' be you've heard your daughter speak of me," said the stranger. "I'm Marcus Daly Boarman."

"Oh," said the suddenly enlightened Mr. Madigan, "the young man from the West."

"Yes, sir; Round Up," said Mr. Boarman.

They sat down. Solemnly the visitor showed the elder man letters from the local bank of Round Up, from the incumbent judge of that district, from the priest of that parish. All set the mark of approval upon Marcus Daly Boarman.

"But I do not expect you to accept merely epistolary proof of my character," went on Mr. Boarman. "If you will see my sister, Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, or my friends, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Kelly, of Park avenue, and part owners of the mines with which my godfather, Mr. Marcus Daly, was associated, they will be glad to answer any questions."

"Yes," replied the somewhat puzzled gentleman, "but why? Are you seeking my influence to gain you a position?"

"Oh, no, no," answered Mr. Boarman hastily. "I want to marry your daughter!"

"Well—bless my soul!" gasped the astounded father. "Does Virginia know it?"

"Not yet," replied Mr. Boarman laconically. "But with your permission she soon will."

"But she's never even seen you!"

"That's why I've come East," smiled the man from Round Up, Montana.

"Come up to the house to-night and take dinner with us," said Mr. Madigan suddenly. "You're some hustler, boy."

"Yes, sir; yes, sir," said Mr. Boarman to both statements.

Outwardly groomed to perfection, inwardly palpitating, the man from Round Up presented himself that evening at the big Madigan house up in the pleasant Bedford Park section of New York. There he met Miss Virginia's mother and her sisters and brothers. They all received him graciously—but——

Where was his lady of the Joan of Arc picture?

Mr. Boarman was under inspection. He knew it and quite approved of it. But the one person for whom he had taken such pains to present himself for inspection, the only person who really mattered, didn't appear to inspect. With a sinking heart he sat at table.

"Oh, by the way," said Mrs. Madigan. "Virginia will regret that she wasn't here during your visit."

"Not here!" faltered Mr. Boarman.

"No, she's in Buffalo," said the lady.

Mr. Boarman shot a swift glance at Mr. Madigan. He caught that gentleman looking at him with a speculative smile, in which lurked a good-natured challenge.

"How long are you going to stay in New York?" asked Mr. Madigan.

"I am going right back," answered Mr. Boarman, "by way of Buffalo. I would like to call upon Miss Madigan if you will give me her address there."

Mr. Madigan laughed. "I said he was a hustler," he remarked.

Just as soon as he had left the Madigan house that night the young Lochinvar from Round Up dashed back to his hotel, packed his grips, took a taxi to the railway depot and said, all in a breath: "Gimme-a-ticket-to-Buffalo-on-the-next train. When-does-it-go?"

In the meantime Mrs. Madigan had telegraphed her daughter, "Mr. Boarman seems very nice. He will call on you on his way through Buffalo."

Straight to a telephone went the Westerner when he reached Buffalo, and called up the friends with whom Miss Madigan was staying.

Within an hour he stood face to face with his divinity of the newspaper picture, with whom he had fallen in love in his Montana office. It was then he wondered for the first time in his life how cameras could fall so short of picturing the reality!

Forty-eight hours passed by, ecstatically, for him at least. She was all he had known she would be—"the one girl on earth for him, by jingo!"

On the forty-eighth hour he asked her to marry him!

"But I've only known you two days," she whispered.

The Picture That Won His Heart—Miss Virginia Madigan (Now Mrs. Boarman) as Joan of Arc.

"I've known you before there even was a world," he answered.

"Yes? But I don't remember that," she said. "It's really only been two days of face to face acquaintance. Go back, Marcus—and after you've won your judgeship—ask me again.

Mr. Boarman—we had forgotten to mention it—had broken into his campaign for election to the Montana bench to see his lady of the photograph.

He went back, made a whirlwind campaign, and—like so many other Democrats—was defeated!

Then came a letter which made the whole world rosier than it had been before.

"I don't care about the old judgeship," wrote Miss Madigan. "And it's—YES. I would have told you long ago—I intended saying it all along—only I didnt want to seem too hasty about it, darling boy!"

This was late in April. Young Mr. Boarman came straight East.

They were married in St. Patrick's Cathedral. Before that almost anybody worth while entertained them. Mrs. Norman de Ruyter Whitehouse beamed upon her youthful sister-in-law-to-be and took her everywhere.

When they had settled down in their drawing room for their long honeymoon journey West, the bride drew out of her shining new valise a book of poems.

"It was this book you sent that helped you win me, dear," she said. And then, with his arm about her, she read:

"Out among the big things—
The mountains and the plains—
An hour ain't important,
Nor are the hour's gains.
The feller in the city
Is hurried night and day,
But out among the big things
He learns the calmer way.

"Out among the big things—
The skies that never end—
To lose a day ain't nothin',
The days are here to spend.
So why not give 'em freely,
Enjoyin' as we go?
I somehow can't help thinkin'
The good Lord meant life so."

"Oh, but I'm glad you saw that picture in the paper," whispered the newly made Mrs. Boarman.

"So am I," whispered he.

CANTON IS GOING AHEAD IN MANY MODERN WAYS

Must Convince Progressives Before Approval Is Given Any New Scheme

(China Press Correspondence)

Canton, July 13.—Canton, and the province of Kwangtung, are now undergoing a period of transition.

Politically, Canton is now the center of the Constitutionalist Movement; and self-government and republican institutions are being tried here. In Canton, the American form of commission government for the city has been inaugurated, and foreign educated young men are running the city affairs.

Early next August, the districts will elect their district assemblies and magistrates, and school or educational commissions independent of politics will be organised throughout the province in order all may help in the aim to make Kwangtung a model province through education.

MANY WANT OFFICE

In the larger cities of Kwangtung there will be municipal governments. Now many are engaged in running for offices, and as most of them are open and some of the best known citizens in the districts are being mentioned for the highest offices within the gifts of their fellow provincials, it is a healthy sign.

Of course, some corruption is expected. Since the Courts have been given power to investigate elections and may declare an election null and void as in the case of the city election last month in Canton, the citizens are not without redress when encroached upon by the politicians.

The reorganisation of the labor guilds into modern labor unions seeking relationship with foreign workmen throughout the world, while annoying the present employers, does not seem to impede the progress of trade and manufacturing in this part of China. In fact, it has stimulated manufacturing and compelled better organisation of finance.

FORM STOCK EXCHANGE

For the first time a stock exchange has found support and government sanction in Canton. The number of corporations is increasing daily.

Many overseas Chinese have returned to Canton, and they are mostly supporters of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, whose program of reforming China through the reorganisation of her government, her industrial system, and the hearts of her people is being accepted by the Chinese abroad. The Mechanics Union is building a modern structure in Honam, Canton, as their headquarter. In the recent election in Canton the laborers turned out in greater force than the merchants and this has attracted no little attention on the part of the trading class.

Cantonese women are now given more freedom, and aside from having the right to vote in the city of Canton, may now engage in all forms of occupation without the question of sex coming against them. Nowadays one may find women selling tickets in railroad stations or acting as conductor on the train, waiting in restaurants, sitting in educational or political conference with men, things never or seldom seen during the period of reaction after the proclamation of the Republic when the old school officials were in power.

A few years ago when a few leaders agitated in favor of boycott or an action, many would follow, but nowadays, the students and the laboring class question everything before signifying their approval or opposition. Students, working men, women, all have their meetings, and unless one is able to present a case, he is not at all sure that his motion of resolution will go through.

PEOPLE INDEPENDENT

The people in Kwangtung are becoming less dependent on the government for their welfare. Everywhere the villages and towns are combining for self-defence, every group of towns having a defence society recognised by the district and the provincial government. The many revolutions and guerilla warfare in this province the last few years have made it advisable and necessary to have militia organisations.

Now every district magistracy in Kwangtung is branch headquarters of the Provincial Highway Bureau, and according to the district election law, every able citizen must perform three days of labor on public works before he has the right to vote. Otherwise he may pay sixty cents in lieu of work. All receipts from the public works assessment will be appropriated to local government interests, some thirty percent going to education.

The election, the strikes among the laborers, the war between Kwangtung and Kwangsi, the preaching of socialism, experiments in new forms of city and district governments, the co-educational system now being tried in so many schools, the organisation of Kuomintang, or Citizens Party, in politics in Kwangtung, the opposition against the introduction of radical views by Chen Tu-hsiao and other Bolshevik agents to South China, all have set the Cantonese to thinking, and the present changes in social, economic, and other conditions in this part of the country deserve special notice by everyone interested in the progress of China.

2,000 BOYS ARE SAVED BY TUCHUN FROM STARVING

Anhwei Official Sends Them Home With Loom To Teach Weaving

(China Press Correspondence)

Chuchow, Anhwei Province.—Two thousand boys and the 100 caretakers from the Chihli famine districts which were brought down into Anhwei by Tuchun Chang Wen-seng, in February, have just been shipped back to their homes.

The boys while in Anhwei were cared for by committees in the cities of Hwaiyuan, Pengpu, Fengyang and Chuchow. The four and a half months these boys spent here cost the Tuchun and the Province something like $50,000.

At most of the places the committees attempted to conduct schools for the boys and in two places they were taught towel weaving. In Chuchow the local hospital force took charge of the sanitation of the quarters.

When the boys were grouped at Pengpu for sending back to their homes the contrast between the appearance of those cared for in Chuchow with those from the other cities was very marked.

Among the entire group of boys there occurred two deaths. One caretaker also died. Several of the boys who had been kept at Pengpu and Hwaiyuen also ran away. All of the others have now been returned to their homes.

The Chuchow boys took back a loom with them to serve as a pattern. Numbers of the boys became quite skillful in weaving.

Hook Catches Foot Of American Who Drowns In Sungari

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Harbin, July 15 (by mail).—There have recently been a number of cases of people drowning in the Sungari. Sometimes it is the strong current that tires the swimmer, sometimes a cold current which causes sudden cramp but in the majority of instances drowning is due to the swimmer being caught in the nets of the Chinese fishermen, who, despite strict orders, will not confine their activities to the areas indicated by the police, and lay their nets anywhere.

These nets are covered with small and very sharp hooks with weights attached to them. There have been many cases in which a victim caught in the net has been dragged down by these hooks.

One exceptionally strong man who recently got caught in this way managed to keep on the surface till help arrived. He was pulled out of the water with the net dragging behind him, as over ten hooks had entered his body and could not be extracted until he had been put into the boat.

A few days ago an agent of the Interallied Technical Board, an American named Bauer, and a Russian friend, were drowned bathing. The American called for help, saying that a hook had entered his foot. His body has not yet been recovered.

This fund will be under the control of the Special Bureau which is to be organised to supervise arrangements for payment of interest, repayment of the loan, etc.

LOSING THEIR ZEST

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, July 18.—Chinese bankers who were at first enthusiastic over the plan of Mr. Jen Fu to arrange a $30,000,000.00 with ten year domestic loan bonds as security, were today reported to be hanging back and not giving their full support to the project. It was said they were not entirely satisfied with the interest terms.

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, July 19.—Mr. A. D. Lasker, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, announces that the operations of the Board's fleet during the past financial year resulted in a loss of approximately $280,000,000 which is $280,000,000 more than estimated.

Mr. Lasker adds that the Government's venture in the merchant marine business last year involved a total expenditure of $680,000,000.

It is estimated that it will cost $300,000,000 to operate the fleet during the present year.

BRITISH COURT DROPS CHARGE IN MOTOR ACCIDENT

Miss A. Moses Not Held For Manslaughter Following Death Of Coolie

A charge of manslaughter against Miss A. Moses, which grew out of the death of a Chinese coolie as the result of a motor car accident at the corner of Nanking and Szechuen roads on June 23, was heard and dismissed in the British Police court yesterday. In dismissing the charge Magistrate G. W. King referred to a Mixed Court rider appended to the inquest verdict as improper, and not within the right of that court. It implied that Miss Moses was responsible for the death of the coolie. He would not frame a formal charge, he said after hearing of testimony.

The accident, as recounted by Mr. E. L. Hartopp, who appeared for the prosecution occurred when Miss Moses, driving a car along Nanking road on the afternoon of June 23 attempted the turn into Szechuen road, northward. A coolie sweeping in the road was knocked down and run over, sustaining injuries from which he died that evening.

Witnesses to the accident testified that Miss Moses was driving at a reasonable speed, that she sounded her horn before undertaking the turn and that the coolie became startled at the sound of the horn and walked directly in front of the machine.

Mr. H. L. Ward, for the defense submitted to the Court that the evidence fell short of establishing a charge of manslaughter. No reasonable jury could give a verdict of negligent driving. The evidence, he maintained, was conflicting in vital points.

COUNCIL DECLINES TO TAKE ACTION TO REDUCE RENTS

Holds That Remedy Lies In Operation Of Law Of Supply And Demand

Hopes of effecting any reduction of high rents in Shanghai through legislation by the Municipal Council are dissipated in an announcement, published in the current issue of the Municipal Gazette which says:

"Various proposals from time to time are laid before the Council having for object the compulsory limitation of rents, but after giving careful consideration to the matter, it has been found that the Council is quite unable to deal with this question.

"It would appear that the remedy, sooner or later, lies in the operation of the law of supply and demand, since if rentals are so high as to make building operations unduly profitable, the building of more houses will speedily be induced until the supply is equal to or overtakes the demand.

"On the other hand limitation of rentals, except for very brief periods to cope with emergency is a highly dangerous expedient since if more profitable avenues of safe investment are available houses cease to be built, and the remedy becomes worse than the disease.

"Proposals therefore by individuals that rentals should be limited in the interest of the tenants can no more be carried out, with justice to all concerned than would a proposal to limit compulsorily the sale price of commodities, or to compel individuals to build their own houses."

Not Hunghutze But Militiaman Fired On British Consul

Offending Junks Located By Chinese—Bandits Still Committing Outrages

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Harbin, July 19.—The Chinese authorities have informed the British Consul that they have located the junks from which shots were fired at the Consul's boat on the 13th instant. It appears that the Chinese who fired was not a Hunghutze but a militiaman.

The manager of the Chinese Eastern Railway, M. Ostroumoff, has left for an inspection of the timber concessions on the Eastern line recently pillaged by the Hunghutzes. A strong Chinese guard will accompany M. Ostroumoff.

In the meantime reports of further outrages committed by the Hunghutzes continue to come in.

The bandits are said to have fired at an engine passing the 20th verst on the Yablon line; burnt a railway bridge near Lucashovo station; fired at the Inspector of the Echo section who was travelling in a motor truck on an inspection trip, and finally to be concentrating large forces near Ajiche station.

Chita Expects U.S Mission To Make Favorable Report

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, July 17.—The American mission which investigated conditions in the Far Eastern Republic is now on its way to Tokio, it was learned today and will probably proceed to America after a few days stay in Japan's capital.

Dr. James F. Abbott, Commercial Attache, and Colonel Davis were requested by the American Department of State to make a thorough though partly unofficial study of the conditions and to report to Washington. It is now said that they will report in Washington and such conclusions as they have drawn will be announced by the government itself if the matters are to be made public.

The mission has spent several weeks in Siberia. It has studied production, both agricultural and mechanical, railroad facilities, political and military situations.

Reports have come from Chita and other points from time to time but they have been meager and in some instances denied. It is believed in Peking that the members have kept their conclusions entirely to themselves.

On the whole, it is expected that the report will be favorable to the Chita Government. The Chita officials do not claim to have a Government functioning like the older western states but they have advanced the argument that their sincerity of purpose and accomplishments in the face of opposition entitles them to a hearing.

On the report of Dr. Abbott and Colonel Davis will probably depend the decision of America as to receiving a Chita mission. The State Department in America has been in doubt whether to treat the Chita Government as entirely separate from Moscow. The report of the mission will probably clear that point.

If the report is favorable, it is expected that Chita will organise her trade mission at once.

Denies Request For Free Navigation Of Chinese Rivers

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 20.—As the result of inquiries regarding recent press reports to the effect that the Japanese have demanded from Chita the right of free navigation on the Amur and Sungari Rivers, the Chinese Government is informed by M. Yourin that such statements are without foundation.

FRENCH CONCESSION.

Dog-muzzling Regulations

The presence in the Concession of stray dogs constitutes at this time of the year a particularly grave danger. Several cases of rabies have been reported. Under these circumstances special instructions have been given to the Police, as from today, to organize a round-up of all dogs found without masters in the streets of the Concession. Such ownerless dogs will be, where possible, taken and lodged in the pound. Otherwise they are to be destroyed on the spot. Residents of the French Concession, who will readily understand the urgent necessity for this measure, are earnestly requested to see that their dogs are not allowed on the streets without being muzzled. They will also render a great service to the community by reporting to the Police or to the sanitary service all deaths of suspected dogs which may come under their observation, either at their homes or in the neighborhood of their dwellings.

(signed) WILDEN.

CARD OF THANKS

On the 5th day of the 3rd moon, our junk, "King Yuen Woo", sailing from Dairen to Fukien with a cargo of oil and beans, was attacked by pirates in the Danchow Sea, at Lua Yue Shan (台州洋面勒魚山). Fortunately the Cruiser Liu Sin (流星), controlled by the Coast Inspector of Customs, witnessed the incident. The foreign Chief and Second-in-Command, and other staff, immediately attacked the pirates, who, after some time, fled, and our junk was towed out of danger by the Cruiser.

The Foochow Merchant Vessel Head Association is requesting the Fukien Commissioner of Customs to suitably reward the aforesaid officers.

We are advertising both in the Chinese and foreign newspapers to express our thanks and our gratitude for the timely assistance rendered.

King Yuen Woo Junk, of Chwang Yuen Tai, Fukien.

Catalogued for Sale: 1,524,757 lbs. (about 681 tons).

Offered: 1,051,312 lbs. (about 469 tons).

Sold: 893,344 lbs. (about 390 tons).

An improvement has taken place in the London market since our last report, partly due to the settlement of the coal miners' strike.

Prices in the local market improved in sympathy with London, and during the week the tone has remained firm with a fair amount of business passing.

There was quite a good demand at improved prices at the weekly auctions today, and out of 469 tons offered 390 found buyers. Two sellers withdrew their catalogues, having probably sold out prior to their turn.

No lots of Awarded Standard Sheet changed hands at the auctions.

Sheet equal to Standard was in good demand at about 22½ cents; one lot fetched 23 cents which marks 2 cents up.

Off Quality Sheet was well competed for and sold up to 22 cents

No lots of Awarded Standard First Latex were on offer.

Crepe equal to Standard advanced to 26½ cents, which, however, was only paid for one lot. This grade met with a fair competition but only a small quantity was catalogued.

Off Color Latex was wanted. Brown, Dark and Barky Crepes found buyers at prices slightly higher on the week.

The Pacific Conference

TO all intents and purposes the Anglo-Japanese Alliance is dead and done with. It is still in existence, it is true, but just as a man who holds his house subject to a month's notice is not likely to spend much money on improvements, especially when the public authorities are considering advisability of pulling it down to widen the street, so the Alliance is not a document in which either party will place much reliance or take much stock. The proposal for a Pacific Conference, which has been promptly accepted by all those to whom the invitation was extended except Japan, which happens to be the one Power that has consistently made a profit out of war, and especially out of the last War, has made of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance a document of no more significance for present-day purposes than Psalmanazar's "Description of Formosa" or the Code of Hammurabi.

The projected Pacific Conference is the natural sequence to the Peace Conference of Paris The Versailles Treaty was to have settled the destinies of Europe but it only succeeded in making them more unsettled than ever. In form, it was a conference; in fact, it was a trial with a foregone conclusion—a verdict and heavy damages against the defendant. The Pacific Conference is in form to be a Conference; in fact it will be a trial, and the defendant is so sure of this that he hesitates to accept its jurisdiction. Before appearing he desires to know the counts in the indictment. He is anxious to know whether Formosa and Korea are to be called as witnesses, whether China is to give evidence, whether Shantung is to be put in as exhibit A. Manchuria as exhibit B and the mass of information collected by the Chinese Maritime Customs and the International Anti-Opium Association on the subject of the Japanese morphia trade in China as exhibit C. Naturally, if the defendant had a clear conscience he would welcome a trial to clear himself of the discreditable reports that are current about him, and that, to speak plainly, are so widely believed. His hesitation may be taken as the measure of his guilt.

If the Pacific Conference is to be really fruitful it must consider all the issues, and, so far as has yet appeared, some of the issues, or at any rate the parties concerned in them, have not been mentioned. Some issues of course do not need specific mention. The United States is not a signatory to the Versailles Treaty, and consequently all the portions of that Treaty that deal with Far Eastern Affairs remain for the United States open questions, and their discussion at the Conference cannot be avoided. Whilst the Pacific Conference presumably will not have the power to modify the Versailles Treaty it will be in a position to initiate the process of modification, and China may well look forward with confidence to the results of the Conference not only on the larger grounds but on the special issues arising from the Versailles Treaty.

There are other states, however, besides China which have their right to participation in the Conference. Mexico has its maritime problems. Either there is a Japanese menace towards Mexico or there is not. The Pacific Conference will be an admirable place in which this issue may be cleared up. The understanding that Mr. Hughes and Mr. Meighen are to be members of the British Delegation suggests that the Pacific slope of the United States will also be not without representation at the Conference table.

Last, but by no means least, the Far Eastern Republic has an indisputable claim to representation. With thousands of miles of Pacific seaboard, with a powerful military and naval Power seeking to dominate its economic and political relations, this newest of Republics, with its millions of population, its hundreds of thousands of square miles of territory, abounding in natural resources to which the economic needs of the world will compel attention and which might easily provoke in covetous and powerful nations a desire for exploitation that would take no account of the natural rights of the inhabitants, and with neither the desire nor at present the ability to spend enormous sums in militaristic or imperialistic ventures, the Far Eastern Republic is a potential focus of Pacific competition, economic and military; and as much in the interests of the peace of the Pacific as in those of the Far Eastern Republic itself, it has a claim on the consideration of and an indubitable right to participation in any conference that sets before itself the task of ascertaining the paths that lead to the peaceful development of all Pacific lands.

Correspondence

H. C. L. AND P. W. D.

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—The difficult problems of H. C. L. and the lack of housing accommodation in Shanghai have at last been satisfactorily solved by a few enterprising residents. Much credit is due to the P. W. D. for its apparent ready acquiescence in the bold solution of the afore-mentioned problems.

In the narrowest part of the Szechuen Road, to the south of No. 44, and in front of the Youroveta Company's offices, there has been for some two years past a large vacant plot of ground. During the last few days the pavement (sidewalk) in front of that land has vanished. In its place, constructed on piles (for fear of inundation, it is to be presumed), appears a handsome, two-storied structure, divided into commodious suites, replete with every comfort. Although the libraries, bathrooms, etc. are still incomplete, some of the satisfied promoters of the scheme may already be seen at the windows of their suites, gazing pityingly at the pedestrians, whom they have dispossessed, disentangling themselves from the intricacies of the mixed traffic in the roadway below.

Yet another matter, Mr. Editor. Can you tell me the probable cost of a building permit which allows one to usurp the whole of the pavement in front of the house one is reconstructing, and at the same time gives one the right to use all the pavement opposite, and much of the narrow roadway too (unlighted at night) on which to store one's pebbles, sand, plaster, ironwork, and other building material? How costly such a permit must be! I am, Sir, Yours, etc.

LOOKER-ON.

Shanghai, July 20, 1921.

ANCIENT AND MODERN

There was a time in days of old,
When writers would a tale unfold
Which caused the pulse to quicken.
The villain lit a cigarette!
We held our breath—'twas safe to bet
The plot would shortly thicken.

The heroine in pure white dress,
Was sure to be in dire distress
Until the final chapter.
Then as the villain muttered "Tush!"

MORAL COURAGE

A bishop was telling a class of boys just what moral courage was. He said "Now, if twelve little boys lived in the same room at school, and one of the new boys knelt down and said his prayers while all the rest got into bed without doing so—that would be moral courage!"

One little fellow, who seemed very interested, asked "Please, sir, if there were twelve bishops living together in one room in a palace, and one of them was a new one, and he got into bed without saying his prayers—would that be moral courage?"

Map Of Europe Is Almost Reconstructed Now

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS
(New York Herald)

The closing days of the current month are marked by an anniversary of twofold significance. On June 28, 1914, the Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his consort were slain in Serajevo. On the same day five years later the German representatives signed in the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles that treaty which officially marked the close of the German phase of the world war. Two years have passed since the latter event, and as a new anniversary approaches it seems a fitting time to review in some detail the history of what may well be regarded as the final phase of the latest of European settlements.

On June 28, when the Germans signed the document which received their unwilling signatures did little more than sketch the bases of the real settlement. The frontiers of Germany were fixed, east and west, north and south. Military terms were laid down to carry out the disarmament of the German military establishment and regulate its future strength. The demilitarisation of the Rhine and the neutralising of the left bank were provided for. But beyond these major conditions all was left incomplete, and most incomplete of all were the provisions made for the discharge by Germany of the great debt incurred by her methods of warfare.

Aside from the German phase, moreover, Europe was left in chaos. On June 28 no eastern frontier had been fixed for Poland or for Rumania, order in the west melted into anarchy and chaos in the east with no determined boundaries. The middle of Europe was a hopeless confusion of rival states, fragments of the recently destroyed Hapsburg Empire. The Balkans were in their chronic state of unrest, intensified by nearly seven years of almost uninterrupted fighting. Italy and the southern Slavs were at daggers drawn at the head of the Adriatic. Rumania and Hungary were on the verge of war along the Theiss. Italy and Greece were quarrelling in the Aegean and in Albania.

BOLSHEVISM WAS BUGBEAR

Over the whole world at this same date hung the shadow of Russia. Bolshevism had been the nightmare of the Paris Conference; panic after panic had assailed the Paris gatherings as news flowed from the east which seemed to forecast the arrival of the Reds, already come to Budapest, in Berlin, in Bucharest, in Warsaw. Nor was the apprehension as to Germany materially less. The Versailles Treaty had been drafted by those on whom the menace of Germany still weighed heavily, and if Paris dreaded a new extension of Russian revolution it feared almost as acutely some new and terrible outbreak in Germany, which might recall the armies to the battlefield and challenge the results of the armistice of Rethondes.

Now, two years after, when one comes to reconstruct, even to a slight degree, the emotions and the conditions of 1919, it becomes clear what an enormous step has been taken toward settlement. If Germany remains and must in the nature of things continue to remain a problem and a menace, it is no longer possible for reasonable men and women to look for an immediate German uprising, a return of the Kaiser or of the military leaders and a renewal of the war. On the German side we can now safely count upon a span of years in which the world will be safe from any German design.

Nor is it less clear that Bolshevism, anarchy, revolution in Germany has become a remote possibility. Order of a sort has emerged from the chaos which followed the collapse of November, 1918, and led to the revolutions of the following year. Germany has gone back to work. The consequences of defeat abroad and domestic uprising at home have not been entirely dissipated, can hardly be eliminated for decades to come, but the primary peril, the prospect of a Red Germany associated with a Red Russia, has vanished.

THREAT OF RED GERMANY

That the republican experiment in Germany has been a brilliant success or even a tolerable expedient can hardly be maintained. That there may be a reaction to some monarchical form in the future not distant seems highly probable. German incapacity for self-government of the sort England, France and the United States have developed has been disclosed in striking fashion. But one is still safe in the conclusion that Germany is unlikely to return to the old order and that she is far less likely to follow the Russian example.

Even more heartening has been the Russian development. After two years the press of the world has ceased to reflect apprehensions of a new Bolshevist offensive. The rally of the Poles under the walls of Warsaw has proved as fatal to the imperialistic purposes of the Reds as the battle of Sobieski under the shadow of Vienna was for the Turkish invasion a few centuries ago. If the Reds have succeeded in overcoming Wrangel and thus destroying the last domestic threat to their regime, they have by the Treaty of Riga accepted frontiers which throw them back vast distances from the lines they occupied two years ago.

And this is not all. If one has every reason for mistrusting and suspecting reports coming from Petrograd and Moscow setting forth the change in faith and method of Lenine, it is not less unmistakable that the Bolshevist phenomenon has entered into a new stage. It has ceased to be a conquering fury threatening to sweep over western Europe as Mohammedanism deluged North Africa. It has become a disease limited to Russia, and Russia has become a region with strongly marked western frontiers. Finland, Poland, Rumania have taken form as barriers against the western sweep of the Red gospel and the Red armies.

Peace has brought so many disapointments, the restoration of normal conditions has proceeded at such a slow rate, progress toward the conditions which obtained before the war has been so painfully delayed, that an intense pessimism has taken hold in the minds of masses of men and women. Yet, if one will but take the trouble to look backward over the recent years, to compare today with this day two years ago, it will be seen that the gain has already been enormous, and that, so far as man can judge of the future, the worst is over.

Since the Peace Conference adjourned the world has seen several wars. A year ago the new Poland and the expanded Rumania were both threatened with destruction under the Russian attack. Again and again anarchy has seemed sure to break down the last elements of order from Prague to Salonica and from Vienna to Constantinople, but now, almost on the anniversary of the date when Warsaw was enveloped, peace reigns in all of the Succession states, and aside from two disputes, in Upper Silesia and in Vilna, Europe is at peace at last.

It is true that the settlements of Paris and of the various conferences since Paris have evoked a storm of protest in every direction. Yet it is not less plain that these settlements, already modified in practice, have begun to assume an aspect of permanence, which gives promise or permitting the makers of goegraphy to publish new editions. Two years ago the only frontiers in Europe which had been even sketched to express the results of the recent war were those of Germany. Today there are left but two relatively minor details to be completed, one affecting 5,000 square miles in Upper Silesia, the other 20,000 square miles in the Vilna region.

Three great steps have been taken toward a readjustment. Russian attack has been broken and has subsided. German revolution has failed, and the will to revolt has disappeared. Finally, the reparations dispute has had an adjustment which opens the way for final arrangement without conflict. Germany has accepted the obligation to pay what must be regarded as the minimum of possibility, and she has, in fact, begun the payments. And these three circumstances, each in itself, constituted greater obstacles to readjustment than anything remaining.

What, after all, are the problems which today block the way to complete readjustment? They are, quite plainly, Upper Silesia, Austria and the Near East. Yet it is already plain that Upper Silesian differences will not lead to general chaos. The troubles are far from ended; Germany, France, Britain and Poland are enmeshed in a dispute which will doubtless fill the press of the world for several weeks to come and may lead to grave incidents. Yet it is no longer conceivable that it will provoke a new invasion of Germany or a new clash between France on the one hand and Italy and Britain on the other. To put the thing simply, the Upper Silesian fire still burns.

but it has been isolated, and must at no distant date be put under control.

As for Vilna, it has vanished from the headlines. That Poland may find consolation for disappointments in Silesia in the acquisition of the Polish city of Vilna seems not only reasonable but probable. If Britain and Italy are prepared to support German claims in Upper Silesia, as a detail in what seems in Rome and London a tolerable arrangement with Germany, neither has any keen interest in supporting the Lithuanians, and the Poles always remain in control of Vilna itself.

AUSTRIA AND HER FUTURE

The situation with respect to Austria is different. Here, after all, is an obvious failure. It is fair to say that no solution of the Polo-German question was possible. The clash between these races is a thousand years old; frontiers have advanced and retreated over centuries. No peace conference could have found a solution which would have been accepted by the Poles and the Germans. The evil of the present arrangement is that it accentuates the old difficulties by facing insoluble rivalries with cheap and inveracious compromises, such as save politicians but doom peace ultimately. But was not the same situation true in the old Austrian Empire?

In any event, the fact is that the Paris conference found Middle Europe in chaos. Three states had sprung into being where one had been before, and in addition, vast regions of the old Hapsburg Empire had been occupied by Poles, by Rumanians and by Jugo-Slavs. Frontiers had been drawn without regard to economic necessities or systems of transportation. What had been an economic unit, although an ethnic patchwork, had become an economic nightmare, with ethnic rivalries still surviving.

Today Austria clamors for admission to Germany. Hungary turns east, west, north and south, passionately demanding the return of her lost provinces. Czecho-Slovakia has become a new Switzerland, all the ways to the sea and the outside world in alien and hostile hands, threatened with partition between Germany and Hungary, doomed if Austrian demands should lead in a future remote or near to the extension of German frontiers to Vienna and Gratz.

The simple fact is that the single really stable arrangement in all of the country from Prague to Athens and from the Adriatic to the Dniester would be an economic, if not a political, union. Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Hungary, Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, Greece and Bulgaria, each is an important detail in such a federation. Failing this, nothing is more certain than that ever increasing anarchy and rivalry will hold out fresh promise to German aspiration and lead directly to a renewal of German efforts to create that Mitteleuropa which is the basis of all German political thought. The German challenge to Britain has ended in disaster and can hardly be renewed. German rivalry with France is not necessarily permanent, unless France mounts guard on the Vistula, but German ambition on the Danube can be abolished only if she confronts some solid barrier to the south.

But this political aspect is in any event a question for the future. It is the economic problem in Middle Europe which is immediate and constitutes the gravest barrier to prompt restoration of economic stability. Left to itself, Austria is impossible; it must be annexed by Germany or find some fashion of associating itself with the Hungarian and Bohemian fractions of the old Austro-Hungarian Empire. It must also find some adjustment of its relations with Italy which will insure it access to the sea through Trieste, or with Jugo-Slavia which will enable it to import through Fiume.

For two years political questions have dominated all else in the discussion of the European settlement. The frontiers which have been drawn with regard to lines of racial parting rather than of communications. The market and the field have been separated. Cities have found their waterworks and railway station assigned to one nation and their business quarters to another, as happened in the case of Teschen. Trunk lines of railways, links in the chains which connect Calais with Constantinople and Milan with Moscow, have been transformed into independent lines, beginning and ending at new frontiers, and passengers have been called upon to change cars at each of these innumerable boundaries. This spells paralysis for the movement of freight and something approximating prohibition for passenger traffic.

What is most promising in the European situation today is found in the fact that the political questions are disappearing, or at least taking secondary position. We have escaped war over the frontiers of Italy and Jugo-Slavia, Rumania and Hungary, Russia and Rumania, and the conflict between Poland and Russia has led to a definite settlement which has stood the test of many months. Franco-German disputes have led not to new invasions but to an adjustment which promises to give temporary cessation of trouble along the Rhine. The map of Europe is almost reconstructed and the unfinished details are insignificant as compared with the problems which have been disposed of.

LEAVING OUT RUSSIA MAP OF EUROPE IS RECONSTRUCTED

Certainly the Russian problem is far from final settlement. War between Poland and Germany in the future is well nigh certain, not because the present settlement between the two countries is markedly unfair but because no real settlement was possible. In the end central European conditions must lead either to a Danubian federation or to German annexation. But Germany will not now attempt to annex, and thus the question is postponed to a later date.

The real danger has been, since Russia collapsed as a menace and Germany turned her back upon Bolshevism, such an accentuation of the Franco-German question as might lead to new invasions, and these in turn might lead to the destruction of order in Germany—the transformation of Bismarckian unity into the traditional German chaos. To put the thing briefly, the danger has been that politics might ruin economic recovery and the world war leave in its train consequences as fatal as those of the Thirty Years' War. We have been on the edge of this catastrophe many times. It was escapable only if Germany took her medicine and agreed to pay what was possible and beyond all question due. But it would seem we have escaped the last and acutest peril of all, which was incidental to the recent crisis and the proposed invasion of Ruhr.

Looking back now over the last two years, and even over the last seven, it seems to me one can quite fairly assume that the worst is over. A world which for more than four years fought and in the process became accustomed to the employment of force to settle all questions is becoming accustomed to something which if not peace is at least a far cry from the warfare of the summer of 1918. If there are smouldering fires in many quarters of Europe, almost without exception they seem to be dying down. Every winter lived through without general anarchy has been a long gain, for each succeeding harvest has been more nearly sufficient to feed the hungry mouths, and we have already lived through three.

Even now a refusal of Germany to pay or disarm would lead to a renewal of the worst of all the dangers. But the recent crisis demonstrated that such a refusal, instead of dividing the Allies would unite them. German defiance at London led to that ultimatum which was but the first step in the direction of the occupation of the Ruhr. Rome and London, even Washington manifested not the smallest inclination to support German resistance. The question of how much Germany could pay was then debatable; the obligation of Germany to pay and the certainty that force would be applied if resistance continued, both were disclosed in the progress of the debate.

In my judgment this was the worst crisis of all. Economic and industrial reconstruction were in more deadly peril in the last days of April than at any time since the Bolshevist attack before Warsaw collapsed. Occupation of the Ruhr would have proven the last straw, so far as the strained and shaken structure of European industry was concerned, and that decay of Europe which so many European writers have announced as already in progress would have been inescapable. But having surmounted this crisis, it seems to me Europe has adequately demonstrated its determination to live and its will to avoid supreme disaster.

QUESTIONS REMAINING

Today there is a Polish question, a central European question, an Eastern question in a new and aggravated form. Real adjustment in Europe will be materially delayed precisely as long as Franco-German relations retain their present character. As long as the French believe that the Germans are plotting a new attack and the Germans believe France is seeking the disruption and ruin of Germany all restoration of normalcy will be delayed. We shall continue to have incidents, denunciations on either side of the Rhine. The Polish problem will add to the bitterness.

On the other hand, provided Germany continues to pay and to disarm, a gradual decline in French apprehension may be expected. And Germany must pay and disarm, since only on those terms can she hope with Anglo-Italian support to escape a new French invasion. For twenty years Germany will be helpless to resist a French invasion and her single hope of escaping it must be compliance with that program which Great Britain and Italy accept as a minimum. France can be restrained only by the desire to avoid a break with her European allies and with a friendly America. But such restraint can be applied only if Germany meets her obligations.

Great Britain, and the United States as well, desires to avoid any new economic disturbance such as would follow any fresh military action. A vast majority of Frenchmen are equally anxious to avoid a new campaign, with all the additional burdens which it would place upon French finance. German defiance and bad faith in the past have weakened the influence of moderate men in all countries. They have made British and American efforts to preserve peace exceedingly difficult. But the recent crisis clearly demonstrated that beyond a certain point moderation in France, Britain and the United States would be disarmed and Germany would be left to her fate.

Since Germany has now met her first payments we are assured of a period of six months during which reparations will cease to trouble the world. Even disarmament in that time is hardly likely to become an acute issue. And a gain of six months for peace at this time is of almost incalculable value. Grave as are certain of its aspects, I cannot believe that the Upper Silesian question will be permitted to plunge Europe into new chaos or permanently halt economic reconstruction—and aside from the Upper Silesian question the European calendar is at the moment singularly and hopefully clear of cases of immediate importance—far freer than at any moment since the Archduke met his death at Serajevo.

After all the long delays and the almost innumerable list of disturbances it is plain that business still waits upon the restoration of confidence, and credits will not come until politics have given way to economics. That we shall have any sudden and far reaching transformation seems to me unlikely. This war has been a slow disease, and recovery will be slow in its turn. Relapses are to be expected, new crises for the moment appearing to threaten fresh chaos. Nevertheless it seems to me that henceforth the improvement will be steady and that the benefits for the United States will begin to be felt decisively before the year is out.
